Reflections from Collective Worship

The Christian value this half term is Peace. During Monday's collective worship the children talked about walls and what the purpose of them are. The children said to keep something that is not good out, to separate two things from each other and to block things. In Belfast and other Northern Irish towns and cities, walls were built to keep arguing communities apart called Peace Lines. There are talks now to demolish these as people are now learning forgiveness and to get along. Once people get along, there will be peace.
